Job Description

About the Role:

Grade Level (for internal use):

05

The Team:

We offer the most comprehensive company-level information, reference data, market data, valuation services and derived analytics across public and private markets.

As part of a global team, you will be responsible for the design, architecture, and development of software solutions using a variety of tools and technologies which continue to evolve as we explore new innovations.

Responsibilities and Impact:

During your internship/co-op you'll have the chance to partner with our industry experts, with on the job experience focusing on high impact work that allows you to apply and develop your skills. Networking, business insights and tailored learning opportunities all support your growth and development, setting you up for success as you begin your career.

- Work directly with the technology team to develop tools, applications and business solutions with clean, high quality and efficient code
- Learn and apply best practices that enhance user experience, usability, scalability, performance and security
- Communicate effectively with technical and non-technical partners
- Collaborate effectively with global team members in order to remove blockers and expedite individual tasks

Our Internship Program: During your summer at S&P Global you'll have the chance to partner with our industry experts, with on-the-job experience focusing on high impact work that allows you to apply and develop your skills. Networking, business insights and tailored learning opportunities all support your growth and development, setting you up for success as you begin your career. The Summer 2025 Internship Program will provide you with a variety of experiences to help you identify your strengths, develop highly transferable skills, and align you to a successful career path for a bright future at S&P Global.

What We're Looking For:

- Current students attaining a Bachelor of Science required in Computer Science, IT Systems, Information Technology, or relevant field required, graduating in Spring/early Summer 2026.
- Work directly with the technology team to develop tools, applications and business solutions with clean, high quality and efficient code
- Learn and apply best practices that enhance user experience, usability, scalability, performance and security
- Communicate effectively with technical and non-technical partners
- Collaborate effectively with global team members in order to remove blockers and expedite individual tasks
